Men who have dated a 10/10 in terms of looks, what is it like? Did it boost your confidence?

Are there any ups or downs to having a super attractive SO? I know I want someone who is intelligent and good-looking, not just one or the other.

one man's treasure is another man's trash is all I can say. 10/10 is not a universal rating.

My wife is not a 10/10. Noone really is, but she is a 9 in the looks/body department and 8-9 in the personality. She used to get hit on a lot, but after a few years of being in a relationship and married, most have started to accept the fact that she simply isn't into being unfaithful.

She still gets a fair bit of attention at parties, but she has a no-bullshit way of handling that attention.

I've dated a few 8-10's usually they're super entitled and expect you to drop whatever you're doing and do what they want.

Probably because most men have basically been servants to them their whole life

I dated a girl who constantly got cat called or whistled at, I laughed it off at first and thought awww yeah she is with me. It was fun at first.

But then when my cousin's friend tried really hard to sleep with it her it got super annoying.

We broke up for other reasons, but it lost its charm fast.

My most attractive girlfriend was a 10. I learned my lesson with her. She ended up being a pretty awful person towards the end. All of my others were definitely attractive, but they were good people as well. She's probably the only one I wouldn't say hi to if I saw her in public. She just had a shit personality when you got o know her. She put in zero effort.
