

Average Daily Time Commitment: Remote vs. In-Office

Remote Workday Breakdown

In-Office Workday Breakdown

1. Why is focused work time higher for remote workers?

2. Do you agree that working remotely saves 35 minutes of getting ready time?

3. What is the biggest time-saving trade-off shown in this data?

4. Which work style (remote or in-office) offers a better work-life balance?

5. How do you minimize daily interruptions in your own work environment?

6. How can in-office workers reduce their high unproductive time?

Synchronous

WORK

Asynchronous

VS

- ➔ Flexibility, autonomy
- ➔ Coordination complexity
- ➔ Documentation load
- ➔ Boundaries blurring
- ➔ Time zone variance
- ➔ Few interruptions
- ➔ Delayed responses
- ➔ Deep work focus
- ➔ Isolation feelings

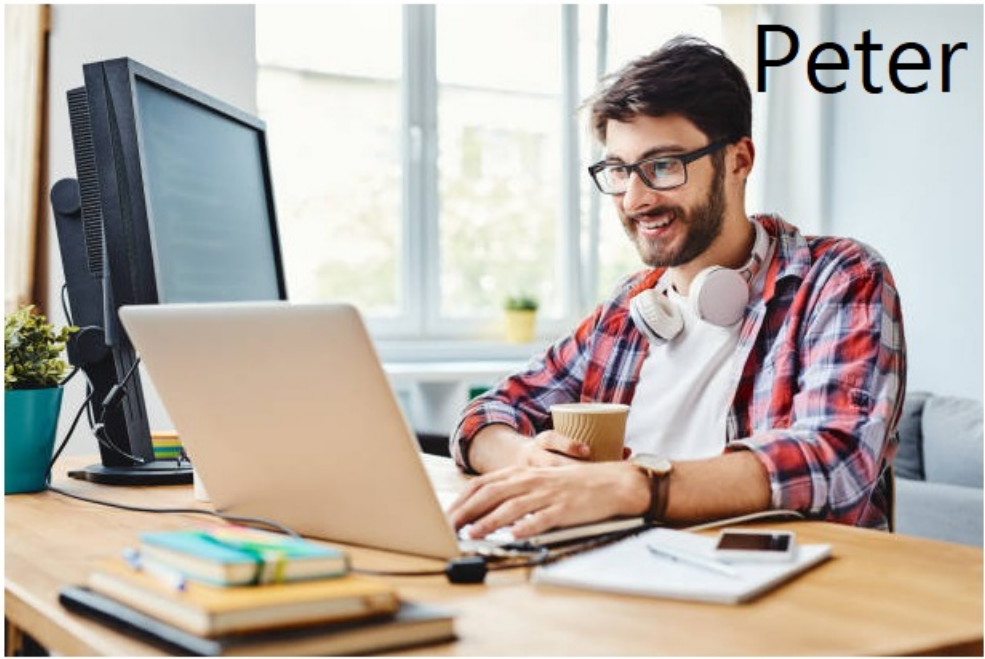

Leo

- ↳ 94% of workers want flexibility in when they work.
- ↳ 80% of workers want flexibility in where they work.
- ↳ 52% of employees would like their company to be asynchronous-first.
- ↳ Employees are interrupted up to 15 times per hour (making deep focus difficult).
- ↳ 82% of workers admit they've felt lonely at work.
- ↳ The average employee attends 62 meetings per month.
- ↳ Employees consider half (31 work hours) of their monthly meetings to be a waste of time.

- Is flexibility in working when and where important to you?
- Do you want your company to be asynchronous-first?
- How often are you interrupted during a typical work hour?
- Do you ever feel lonely at work?
- How many meetings do you have, and what percentage of them would you say are wasted?

Peter

Listen to three people talking about transitioning to async, and take notes on the benefits they mention. Then, match the pictures to the speakers and explain the significance of each.

Eleonor

Valentino Bergamo

| Structure            | Shortened Example                                    | When to Use It                                                             |
|----------------------|------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Used to              | I used to waste time before async.            | To talk about a past habit or state that is no longer true in the present. |
| No longer            | I no longer have to do that.                  | To state simply that a past habit or requirement has stopped.              |
| Tend to              | My team tends to use software for everything. | To describe a current, frequent, and general behavior or inclination.      |
| Generally / Normally | I generally finish reports after 8 PM.        | To state a typical or usual current routine or expectation.                |
| Get used to          | I had to get used to writing details down.    | To describe the process of adapting to a new situation or habit.           |
| Be used to           | I am used to reviewing everything at night.   | To talk about the result - that something is now familiar or not strange.  |
| Break the habit      | I need to break the habit of feeling guilty.  | To refer to the action of stopping a repetitive or routine behavior.       |

- What is one specific activity you used to do regularly as a child that you wish you still had time for now?
- Before your current job, how did you use to organize your workday, and how is that different now?
- What is one bad working habit that you no longer do, and how did you manage to stop it?
- When you have free time, do you tend to spend it alone or with other people?
- How generally does your family spend their evenings, and do their routines affect your work time?
- What was the hardest thing you had to get used to doing when you started your current job?
- What is one unique, strange or annoying thing about your workplace that you have become used to?
- Is there a habit related to social media or checking your phone that you actively try to break the habit of?